

Pontoon in two-lawyer fight

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — A battle over the need for two separate village attorneys is widening a rift between old and new factions on the village board.

And Mayor Glen Wilson said he's not going to back down from this fight.

A majority of the village trustees want their own lawyer, separate from the village attorney, and June 13 they proved it by overriding a mayoral veto in order to hire one.

In an earlier meeting, trustees voted by the same 4-2 margin to establish the position of legal counsel. Attorney Andrew H. Miosky of Granite City was named to fill it.

Mayor Wilson and Trustee Louis Whitsell had questioned the necessity and legality of the action after the May 23 meeting. "I don't think our ordinance calls for two attorneys," Wilson said.

Friday, he reiterated that and said he was having Village

Attorney Keith Jensen look into the legality of the move.

"I vetoed it 'cause they didn't budget for it," Wilson said, adding that he wasn't surprised when the board overrode his veto.

"But I still am against it, and if there's anything I can do to stop it, I will," Wilson said. Asked if he felt the trustees didn't trust Jensen, Wilson said, "I don't know. Keith has talked to them and given any information they asked for."

Whitsell had objected for economic reasons, saying the village already has a $10,000 deficit in its budget.

The resolution calls for the second attorney to be paid $60 an hour, according to the village clerk.

Trustee Robert Douglas made the motion to override, and Trustee Loren Madison seconded. Trustee Irene Karlechik and Marvin Ribbing voted with them.

Trustee Robert Abel and Louis Whitsell voted against.

Man jailed in sewer bill dispute

Paul Gain
... won't pay

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

MITCHELL — Paul Gain is locked up in the Madison County Jail.

"I guess I'll be here as long as I won't put up the thousand dollars (bond)," he said Friday. "I don't owe anything. I absolutely am not going to pay, so I guess I'll be here for a while."

Gain, 49, refuses to pay a $1,000 sewer bill the Madison County Special Service Area No. 1 says he owes for the Mitchell Auto Mart, 501 E. Chain of Rocks Road. The service area got a judgment for that amount in Madison County Court about a year ago, but Gain refused to pay.

Gain has been fighting with the district ever since he closed the Auto Mart after he suffered a heart attack in 1980. The building has been completely vacant since 1981. The property is not hooked up to the district's sewer line. It used a septic tank when it was open.

"When they came up with the sewer district I was for it because I thought it was a good idea. I paid my bill for about a year, right up until my health caused me to close the place," Gain said.

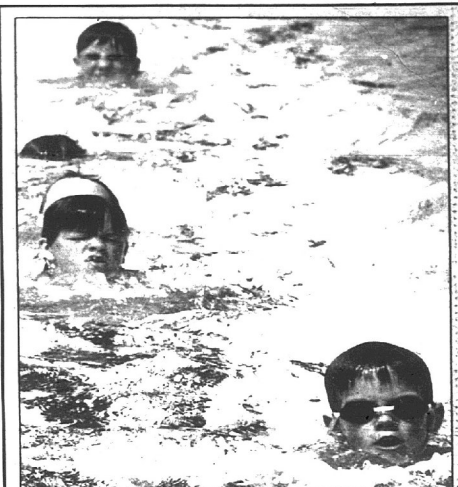

Gain said sewer officials never talked to him about hooking his business onto the sewer. "They never gave me a schedule or nothing, never said they had any plans to hook it up. It was empty anyway," he said.

"My only dealing with the district was over the sewer bill. I'm the one that called them up after I started having the health problems and tried to work something out. I told them I was closing and would not need their services."

In March, the service area took Gain to court again and he was ordered to produce documents showing his complete financial assets. After numerous appearances, Gain refused to pay. He also refused to produce the required documents, many of which he said he couldn't locate anyway.

On Monday, Gain was found in contempt of court by Associate

Motorcycle death still under scrutiny

EDWARDSVILLE — The death of a Granite City man, resulting from a motorcycle-auto collision, was ruled accidental by a jury during a coroner's inquest Wednesday.

Donald Brotherton, 25, was killed when his motorcycle and an auto driven by Rose Perigen, also of Granite City, collided on Horseshoe Lake Road near the southbound ramp of I-255 shortly after noon May 11.

Brotherton was taken by ambulance on advanced life support to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where he died at 12:42 p.m. of massive head and chest injuries.

Det. Lt. Michael Crouch of the Pontoon Beach Police Department testified that Perigen was traveling east on Horseshoe Lake Road and turned left into the path of the motorcycle which was heading west into Pontoon Beach.

Crouch testified that Perigen said she did not see any traffic around her as she made the turn. Perigen was ticketed for failure to yield while making a left turn.

Crouch said the Illinois State Police is continuing an investigation of the accident. One of the things they are trying to determine is if Brotherton's headlight was on at the time of the accident, Crouch said. The motorcycle that Brotherton was riding had bypassed the ignition system and had switches to turn the motorcycle on and off, Crouch said.

Madison County Coroner Dallas M. Burke said that drug and alcohol screenings on Brotherton were negative.

Pennekamp sees potential in new job — and in area

By Dennis Grubaguh
Managing editor

EDWARDSVILLE — The office wasn't the picture of an organized executive. In fact, it was chaos.

"Hold on, and I'll clear you a chair," said James R. Pennekamp to his visitor. He quickly brushed aside a couple of large boxes and several file folders. "Where did all this stuff come from?" he chided himself.

Five days into his new job as executive director of the Leadership Council of Southwestern Illinois, Pennekamp was thoroughly into his work. It was everywhere.

The 38-year-old Granite City resident has come a long way in a short time. As he puts it, he brings "a lot of history" to the job, built in several productive stages.

Twelve years ago he was assistant director of the economic development program in Jefferson County, Mo. He left that job in 1982 to become executive director of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. In 1985, he became executive director of the Greater Alton/Twin Rivers Growth Association in the Alton area. He left that job in 1989 to come here, the third floor of the Rendleman Building at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Now, he said, he's got what

Pennekamp 'talks up' Midwest

New Leadership Council Executive Director James Pennekamp has lived around the world, but he thinks Midwest is best.

Born and raised in Westfield, N.J., until the age of 13, he moved with his parents to Brussels, Belgium, as part of his father's career as a scientist with Esso (now Exxon). He learned to speak French, before the family transferred back to Westfield in his junior year of high school.

He majored in sociology, speech, drama and acting at Valparaiso (Ind.) University. College settled him on his love of the Midwest's "country life," but it did little to educate him on economic development, a career for which there was no specialized training 12 years ago. College studies did, however, have benefits as far as helping his career.

"I'll tell you what had a lot to do with it — (learning) communication. I'm a good writer and a good talker."

Venice parents ignore principal's plea for help

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

VENICE — Grade School Principal Seth Kirkpatrick received no response in his plea to parents to help with failing eighth-grade students.

Despite mailing a relatively large number of deficiency and failing notices this past semester, Kirkpatrick said he has heard nothing from parents.

"I didn't hear anything from anyone," Kirkpatrick said last week. "I don't know what was going on. It upset some parents and it was widely talked about but there were no conferences."

Without those conferences, Kirkpatrick said, he didn't know what kind of problems the children were having. Of 36 eighth-graders, 14 were retained to repeat the same grade in 1989-90.

Board members were dismayed by the report which Kirkpatrick presented at the May 11 meeting.

'We can make a lot of excuses here but it's all our problem'

— Wilbert Glasper, board president

"Some of those kids were referred to special education because of learning disabilities," Kirkpatrick said. "But most of them had poor test scores or were not completing assignments."

Although Kirkpatrick met with no success, Venice High School Principal John Rush fared better. At the June 8 meeting, he said he got "quite a response" to the failing notices. He gave no number but said it was less than 75 percent response.

Rush spoke in favor of the nine-week system, crediting it with leading to several of those parent conferences. With the nine-week system, deficiency and failing notices are issued during the fifth week.

During that meeting, Irene Orr, a teacher at the high school, recommended that the system and the exam schedule, approved by the board for a one-year trial basis last year, be retained.

Orr surveyed teachers and principals at both the elementary and high schools with 31 of 35 favoring the system. The district switched from a six-week system.

Many reasons for keeping the nine-week system were mentioned. They included:

•Allows more time to evaluate students.

•Relieves teachers of one-third of the paper work, allowing them to spend more time with students.

•Deficiency and failing notices are mailed to parents during the fifth week; and

•Since other districts use the nine-week system, it makes transfers into or out of Venice easier.

Board members were also hopeful that the new system might allow information to come to the board sooner than Kirkpatrick's report had.

"We would like to get the same type of results but get them earlier in the year," Kirk Gardner, board secretary, said.

"There is something going wrong somewhere," Salmond said. "I don't want to wait until the end of the year to find out it's too late (to do anything)."

But Orr and Mary Sue Harper, another committee member, staunchly defended the system.

"The kids that failed did not fail because of a nine-week grading period," Harper said, voicing her concerns about class size.

Wilbert Glasper, board president, addressed the concern, conceding there were some problems with class size but adding there were none any different than what most districts are facing in the wake of financial problems.

"We can make a lot of excuses here tonight but it's all our problem," Glasper said. "The 'bottom line' is that we can't get to an eighth-grade child who has just floated along (through the school system), and then teach him to read."

Glasper was also critical of the lack of parental response.

"We need to get on these parents," Wilbert Glasper, school board president, said. "Some of these parents don't work and they should have more involvement."

Glasper suggested that an ad-hoc parents' committee be formed and that parents be invited to spend a day at school with their child.

"They should come and see if their child can read and write — and if they can't, ask why," Glasper said.

Glasper said that careful monitoring of each child should start in kindergarten. "We have to stay with this kid from Day One," Glasper said.

Glasper was critical of waiting too long to determine that a student is having problems.

"If a kid gets to high school, he can't do the work if he hasn't gotten the tools to do it by then — it's too late," Glasper said.

Glasper stressed that parents need to help out at home by having their children read anything from newspapers to the Bible.

"Parents are going to have to get involved," Glasper said. "It's not just us that are having these problems. It's like a plague, it's everywhere."

Personal safety seminar here

Studies show the average person will fall victim to crime at least three times in his or her life. However, individuals do not have to be a helpless victim.

They can learn how to avoid personal assault or learn how to deal with it, if assaulted. St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Going Strong Wellness Center will be offering a personal safety seminar, led by Barbara Barrett, on Wednesday, June 28, at 7 p.m. in the Wellness Center classroom, 2103 Iowa St.

Barrett is a representative of the St. Louis regional office of Citizens Against Crime, a national organization that offers personal safety seminars to 25,000 people a week, nationwide.

"I want to encourage everyone to take responsibility for themselves," said Barrett, who has 11 years of experience in law enforcement and education. "No matter if you are a young woman who lives alone, or an older man with a family, you must take responsibility for your own safety, and not just depend on someone else being there."

Barrett has conducted personal safety seminars for a variety of area community groups and local businesses, including McDonnell Douglas and Southwestern Bell.

"I think the program is particularly good for women of any age who spend a lot of time alone. This includes women who live alone or have a husband who travels a lot. Even women who have families may be vulnerable. Having another person around is not a 100 percent safeguard," Barrett said.

The seminar will involve both information and interaction. "I try to get everyone involved," Barrett said. "Through demonstrations and role-playing, I will show participants some simple self-defense techniques that anyone can use, regardless of their physical condition," she said.

"I will also discuss the pros and cons of owning a weapon for self-defense. Citizens Against Crime advocates the use of tear gas for self-defense. I will explain how to get tear gas and how to care for it."

Barrett will also discuss ways to deal with the aftermath of personal assault.

"If you are assaulted, it can leave you feeling very vulnerable. I will discuss some ways to deal with those feelings," she said.

The seminar is free, but space is limited. The Wellness Center can be called at 798-3WEL to reserve a place or for more information.

Authorities gear up to observe moving of nuclear rail shipment

By Terry Edelmann
Staff writer

The 19th shipment of nuclear waste materials, shipped by rail through the St. Louis area en route to a site in Idaho from Three-Mile Island, Pa., will pass through early Tuesday morning. The train cuts a path through the metropolitan area from East St. Louis, through St. Louis, Maplewood, Webster Groves, Oakland, Kirkwood and Valley Park.

And safety officials are ready for it.

"We'll be out there," Kirkwood Fire Chief Donald Carter said.

Carter said he and the city's fire marshal, as well as members of the city's police department, will be patrolling the train tracks carefully.

"We check the tracks ahead of the time the train comes for any debris. And we do radiation checks before, during and after the train."

Carter said the fire marshal stands by the tracks at the western boundary of Kirkwood.

He tells me when the train is passing, gives me an all clear. Carter said he's never detected any problem from the nuclear shipments.

I get a higher radiation reading from the sun than I ever have after the shipments," he said.

But if a leak did happen, Carter agrees there wouldn't be much he, or anyone, could do.

"We'd just give orders to evacuate," he said.

The shipments have been the target of criticism since they began in July 1986.

"It's crazy to transport the material 2,400 miles through populated areas," Kay Drey, a University City resident and a member of Citizens Against Radioactive Transport, said.

And Drey said the casks used in the transport had never been actually tested.

"The casks containing Three-Mile Island waste were only tested by computer model," and even those tests were incomplete, she said.

"The computer tests didn't test the effect of water on the casks. In the event of a derailment, the casks could wind up in water," Drey said.

Legislation introduced in April to the U.S. Senate by Missouri Sens. Christopher "Kit" Bond and John Danforth calls for closer regulation of shipping packages for nuclear waste as well as for careful scrutiny of routes selected for the transport.

But since the Three-Mile Island shipments are due to be ended this year, the bill probably won't have any effect on them, Drey said.

Carter said all in all he gets more concerned about some materials transported through the area by truck than he does about the Three-Mile Island waste.

"I think the ammonia nitrol which passes through on Highway 55 and I-270 from Louisiana is more dangerous. You just don't hear about it."

Bike turns up missing from yard

Bike swiped

A Schwinn bicycle valued at $300 was stolen from the yard of Katherine Haymaker, 2800 block of Nameoki Road, last Monday night.

Pot possession charged

Steven M. Stone, 21, of the 3100 block of Edgewood Avenue, was arrested and charged with possession of cannabis at 10:56 p.m. Tuesday after a patrolman saw him allegedly driving erratically on Nameoki Road near Pontoon Road.

DUI alleged

Violet Shumate, 21, of the 4600

Granite City

block of Kirkpatrick Homes, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol at 12:43 a.m. Wednesday. Police said a witness took down her license plate number after she sideswiped several parked cars in the 2200 block of Washington Avenue. She was also charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Car burglarized

Sandra Agers of the 2100 block of East 24th reported that her pickup was taken from her car while it was parked Tuesday in the 1400 block of Madison Avenue. Two keys were found in the car, and a nearby vacant lot, where she discovered several keys missing.

Madison cop residency rules may be loosened

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

MADISON — Appointees to the Police Department will be given 90 days to take up residence in the city, the city council tentatively decided Tuesday night.

At the request of the Board of Police Commissioners, the council decided to drop the rule demanding that new policemen be residents at the time of their appointment.

The commissioners gave as their reason the necessity of maintaining an eligibility list long enough to satisfy state law. City Attorney Casper Nighoshian will draw up an amendment to the current ordinance, and it will be read and acted on at a special meeting Tuesday, June 20, at 7:30 p.m.

At the suggestion of 4th Ward Alderman Norris Horton, the council also instructed Nighoshian to further amend the ordinance to require all new policemen to sign two-year contracts. If they leave the department before their contracts expire, they would be required to reimburse the city some $4,000 for the cost of training.

In other action, the council requested Street Superintendent Rob Robbins to draw up a report within 30 days outlining ways to improve the performance of the Street Department.

The council also was informed that a lawsuit against the city and Mayor John Bellicoff dropped last year had been refiled in Third Circuit Court. The plaintiff, Ryan E. Campbell, asks for damages for being fired from the street department shortly after the April 1985 election. Campbell alleges he was fired solely for supporting Thomas Gordon in the mayoral race.

Michel fights steel quotas

By Edward T. Hearn
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel urged Congress Tuesday to seek a compromise solution in connection with a titanic struggle being waged over continuation of quotas on imported steel.

While recognizing that President Bush is all but committed to extending the quotas another five years, Michel said the interests of major steel consumers who oppose the quotas for the extra costs they produce can still be protected.

Michel, the Peoria Republican whose district includes Caterpillar Inc., a major steel consumer, and Keystone Steel and Wire, a steel producer, said an extension proposal should be carefully drawn and should last less than five years, the length of the current arrangement.

"Our domestic steel industry has been given time by the (quotas) to modernize and get back on its feet financially," Michel said, testifying before the House Ways and Means subcommittee on trade.

"So I would urge that we devise a system to gradually phase out (quotas) over the next two to three years," he added, noting his own politically ticklish situation.

Michel also said the ceiling on imports might be lifted from the current 20 percent to somewhere in the range of 23 to 25 percent, in hopes of preventing the shortages that have plagued CAT.

The quotas, formally known as Voluntary Restraint Agreements, were negotiated by the Reagan administration in 1984 with 29 countries (including the European Community) at a time when the U.S. steel industry was bleeding jobs and cash.

The five-year agreement, during which major steel firms regained some of their health and racked up more than $2 billion in profits in 1988, expires in September, setting the stage for a Congressional battle on giving the Bush administration power to renew the VRA program.

CAT has lined up more than 200 U.S. companies which oppose VRAs, but they are taking on a powerful bloc of steel producers that were successful in getting President Reagan "to enunciate trade fairness" as the paramount concern regarding the ailing steel industry. Michel said VRAs shouldn't become a "permanent feature" of the U.S. economy, and noted that the 20-percent limit still allows foreign subsidized steel to enter the U.S. market.

He said that once the quotas are lifted, steel-exporting nations that dump their product in the United States, or sell it below cost, should be subject to reciprocal trade sanctions.

"The best way to achieve progress in this regard is to notify these nations trading partners now that there will be a time-certain end to the VRAs, and that at that time they will be subject to the full force of U.S. dumping and countervailing duty laws," Michel said.

Responding to Michel, Rep. Richard T. Schulze, a Pennsylvania Republican whose district includes Lukens Steel Co., said ending the VRAs would flood the American economy with cheap imported steel.

"Bob, I love you, but we can't phase this thing out in a short period of time because we would be short-changing the American worker," he said.

EDWARDSVILLE — Madison County property owners will now be able to pay their property tax bill with either VISA or MasterCard.

This is the first year credit cards could be used to make the payments, but those payments must be made at the county treasurer's office.

"It's a little more convenient if someone runs a little short of cash," Deputy Treasurer Jim Veltes

However, residents in two townships, Venice and Granite City, cannot use credit cards because their property taxes are collected at their township offices.

Property tax bills will be going out June 26, according to County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

The first payment is due Aug. 7, with a 1 1/2 percent penalty payment after Aug. 8, and an additional penalty after Sept. 8.

The final payment is due Oct. 10.

Penalty dates for that payment are Oct. 11 and Nov. 13.

Payments may be made by mail or in person, but those wanting to pay their tax bill in person will have to go to a different location this year.

Because of demolition for the new county administration building, several county offices are being moved, including the treasurer's office.

The treasurer's office is currently located in the old bank of Edwardsville Building at the corner of Main and Purcell streets.

However, on Monday, June 19, 15 employees — including the entire collection department — will take up residence at the Cassens Insurance Building, 400 St. Louis St., Edwardsville.

County Treasurer Michael "Mick" Henkhaus said the rest of the department will vacate the building when asbestos removal work begins prior to demolition.

He said that may be sometime in late summer.

Those people will move temporarily to offices at the Bank of Edwardsville building on St. Louis Street.

Two other departments — the state's attorney's office and the public defender's office also will also be moved out of the former Bank of Edwardsville building. The public defender's office will be temporarily quartered in the former Edwardsville Township building at 214 St. Louis St.

•Pennekamp

he always wanted: the chance to work toward economic development on a regional basis. In that regard he feels the Leadership Council may be one of the most important entities in Metro East.

"The Leadership Council isn't a group that dictates, but a group that invites all parties toward economic development and promotion of Madison and St. Clair counties," Pennekamp said. "Without the leaders in the two counties coming together, this thing wouldn't work."

The council, by its own definition, is a broad-based economic development corporation made up of leaders from business, industry, labor, education and government.

"What is driving this entire program is the need to increase employment opportunities in southwestern Illinois. The question is, 'How do we best address this?'" Luring capital investment — bricks and mortar — would appear to be the best way, he said.

With only one full-timer, Pennekamp, and three part-time workers on staff, the Leadership Council has to rely on others for help. That's where the 75-member board of directors comes in, utilizing the resources of some of the best, most productive and influential leaders in the region.

These movers and shakers and their businesses help raise the council's operating funds.

"The key (to success) is that they have to be in agreement on what is an issue," Pennekamp said.

Since it was established in 1988, the council has been a chief lobbyist for the completion of several major projects, among them:

- Supporting completion of Interstate 255, and still-planned extension of Federal Aid Primary 413 through to Godfrey;
- Converting Scott Air Force Base into joint military-civilian use;
- Establishing a regional Development Authority to use bonds for drawing new investment;
- Building a new Clark Bridge at Alton;
- Backing passage of the controversial tax increase for the Metro East Sanitary District.

The need for the council showed itself in the early 1980s when many communities in Madison and St. Clair counties began pushing individual campaigns of promotion.

Pennekamp said there was no umbrella organization to help coordinate those efforts until the Leadership Council was formed.

The way the Southern Illinois market is looked at by Missouri has always been a problem for development here, said Pennekamp, who saw first-hand how Illinois was viewed during his years in Jefferson County.

"There's a great deal of misinformation" about local resources, which was one of the prompts for a bi-state investors tour sponsored the last couple of years by the Leadership Council. That tour shows off the region's assets and has sparked a lot of enthusiasm.

Promotions, such as the tour, are the only way to convince outsiders to come here, Pennekamp said. "Some of the bigger issues, like opening I-255, really focused attention over here... Now we're in a situation where we need to clarify and explain."

Working through its development allies among them the Regional Commerce and Growth Association and the state's Department of Commerce and Community Affairs — the Leadership Council has ties to the entire world. As an example, Gov. James Thompson recently returned from a goodwill trip to Moscow.

Pennekamp is only the second person to head the Leadership Council, following Mary Kane of Edwardsville, who left the post to take the reins of the Southwestern Illinois Development Authority.

"I've got one advantage, having worked closely with Mary Kane many years," he said.

Pennekamp will get to know every community in the two counties quite well in coming months, but he said he has no intention of leaving his Cleveland Avenue home in Granite City, where he has lived with his wife, Marlene, and their two sons since coming to Illinois.

"I live between two firemen — why would I want to leave?"

•Sewer

Judge J. Lawrence Keshner and ordered to be taken into custody. The court also awarded attorney fees to the service area.

Gain was 25 minutes late for the hearing Monday and found out about the decision afterward. He turned himself in at the Madison County Jail at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Gain said he moved to the area in 1960 or '61 and opened the Auto Mart in 1969. He married and raised four children here. After he suffered a heart attack in 1980, Gain closed the Auto Mart and bought a salvage yard in Sumnerfield, Ill.

After having a second heart attack a year later, Gain all but closed the salvage yard as Gain contends the original judgment came out of a "kangaroo court" and that his civil rights were violated.

"I asked for a jury trial. The court decided I could have a jury alright, but they decided I owed the sewer bill and the jury was only going to decide how much I owed. That's not a jury trial at all."

Gain said he didn't think a jury would have found he owed the sewer bill, but he said if it had he might have paid the bill.

"I guess, if I thought it had been a fair trial, I would have. I guess a jury could have decided that. I never really thought of it," he said.

Gain never hired an attorney, but filed three motions of his own. Monday, which are still pending. One asks for dismissal because his civil rights were violated.

Another is a motion for health: K states he has had two heart attacks and heart surgery and is required to walk three miles a day, take daily medication and is on a low cholesterol diet. It also states his animals at the salvage yard will die if not fed and watered daily.

The last motion is to dismiss the case because the hearing was held without him.

"Their lawyer was late almost every time. I got the time mixed up and was 25 minutes late and they went without me. It's not right," he said.

Gain said he figures he is in jail so they can try to wear him down. He said his health problems are not addressed properly in jail, but said he is not going to let them get the best of him.

If Gain could really afford to pay the bill, would he have gone through all this?

"You're asking me a question I'd rather not hear," Gain said. "Probably, if I'd kept making money at the salvage yard, I'd just gone ahead and paid the bills and kept my mouth shut."

Pontoon

Douglas, Karlechik and Ribbing were all elected to the board in April, running as a team that had been heavily supported by incumbent Madison. Madison had frequently been at odds with the mayor and other trustees on a variety of issues.

Douglas was out of town and could not be reached Friday, but he had previously indicated that he and other board members lacked confidence in Jensen.

Trustee Marvin Ribbing said he personally didn't feel that Jensen was doing the job properly. But he added, "I think there are some other areas we need to look at, and I think that Mr. Jensen could use some help."

He declined to be specific.

Jensen could not be reached for comment Friday, but he said Douglas had previously said he wanted more information about the recently established Tax Increment Financing Commission and had been unable to get some annexation records he sought.

Attorney Miosky said he was "real excited" about the prospect of working for Pontoon Beach because it is a "rapidly expanding community."

"My understanding is they want me to provide (the trustees) with independent legal opinions," Miosky said.

Venice LTC clarifies smoke issue

To the editor:

I would like to clarify a few items in regard to the editorial in the Thursday, June 1, 1989 Press-Record captioned, "Smoking has no place in school."

The editorial writer has every right to express his or her opinions about the subject of smoking in schools. However, in several instances it appears that the writer applies the situation at Venice-Lincoln Technical Center to all schools, i.e., "Schools were wrong to ever allow smoking on their premises," and "The first district that allowed smoking simply paved the way for others to use the excuse that precedent had been set." "Schools" and "Districts" referred to in these lines seems to apply to all schools: elementary, secondary and adult. I do not know any elementary or secondary districts that allow students to smoke on the premises, nor should they. However, Venice Lincoln Technical Center is an adult school not an elementary or secondary school. Other adult centers, community colleges, and universities that have similar student populations with regard to age, have similar smoking regulations for their staff and students. Additionally, Venice-Lincoln Technical Center does not have a teacher lounge, but it is true that most schools do have one.

In looking to the future, if pending legislation would outlaw smoking in public places such as schools and restaurants, Venice Lincoln Technical Center would certainly comply. Until then, I hope our policy for the next school year provides a balance that both smokers and non-smokers can be comfortable with.

The suggestion that American Cancer Society posters line the smoking areas is a good idea and will be utilized.

PETER C. PONCE

Director

Venice-Lincoln Technical Center

Veterans to have reunion, Illinois Navy men sought in parade

To the editor:

I hope the Press-Record/Journal will be willing to help me locate Illinois Navy veterans who served on patrol or anti-submarine craft. They seem to be harder to find than those in other states, ironic since Illinois is the state where we are registered as a non-profit organization.

As a dyed-in-the-wool Midwesterner, it is frustrating to me that our membership is predominantly men from both coasts, especially the East. I would like to correct that. We are a new organization which plans its third reunion in St. Louis in May 1990 and would like these veterans to know about it.

For a sample newsletter or descriptive flyer they are invited to contact our membership chairman, Joe Kelliher, P.O. Box 232, Cambridge, N.Y., 12816-0232. We ask an annual membership contribution of $10.

Ship classes represented by our 1,556 members include: PC, SC and 16 other types of the Navy's "small ships."

Honor to be in parade

To the editor:

I want to offer my gratitude and appreciation to the area's veterans for their service to our country, and for allowing me to be a part of the Memorial Day services in Granite City.

It was an honor and pleasure to participate in the activities that honored our veterans. They deserve our continued support, not only on Memorial Day but every day.

We must continue to pay tribute and remember the contributions of those who have fought for the freedom and values of the United States.

'Faerie Tale Theater' returns

By Mark Bretz
Staff writer

A whimsical children's series that first aired on the Showtime cable television network and a fast thriller movie that premieres on Showtime are the weekend's top viewing bets.

Shelley Duvall's "Faerie Tale Theater" showcased 26 famous fairy tales when it aired originally on Showtime a few years back. The series has now popped up on PBS, and premieres at 7 p.m. Sunday on KETC-TV (Channel 9). The first of the hour-long adaptations to be rebroadcast is "Pinocchio."

Duvall, who conceived the idea of using real actors and actresses to dramatize such familiar tales as "Little Red Riding Hood," "Beauty and the Beast" and "Hansel and Gretel," served as the series' executive producer and won numerous awards for her efforts.

Today's (Sunday's) presentation, "Pinocchio," features Pee Wee Herman in the title role of the little wooden boy who must learn that there are consequences to when a lie is told. Carl Reiner, James Coburn and Jim Belushi co-star.

The plot thickens

Showtime premieres "Backfire," a nifty suspense drama, at 8 p.m. today. Karen Allen, Keith Carradine, Dean Paul Martin, Dinah Manoff and Jeff Fahey are the stars in a psychological thriller about a woman from the poor side of the tracks whose attempt to kill her wealthy husband, a Vietnam veteran with lingering emotional scars from the war, comes up short and instead leaves him in a catatonic state.

Allen takes up with an enigmatic stranger (Carradine).

KEITH CARRADINE, left, plays a mysterious stranger and Karen Allen plays his unscrupulous lover in a Showtime cable television movie, "Backfire," which premieres at 8 p.m. today.

While continuing her plans to inherit her husband's fortune, but a series of unsettling events gets the hunter to thinking she may instead be the hunted, by forces unknown.

"Backfire" is a stylish, adult drama that offers enough new twists to keep you guessing as to who's doing what to whom. Acting is solid, and director Gilbert Cates keeps the drama moving at a brisk enough pace to maintain suspense. All that's missing is Mick Jagger singing "You Can't Always Get What You Want."

"Father" in retrospect

Also on Father's Day, CBN, the cable network that bills itself as "The Family Channel," is airing a "Father Knows Best" marathon from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today. The original cast members — Robert Young, Jane Wyatt, Elinor Donahue, Billy Gray and Lauren Chapin — are on hand to reminisce about the 1950s television series and also to present their own favorite episodes.

MERYL STREEP, Kurt Russell and Cher are workers at a plutonium plant in "Silkwood."

True-life 'tabloid' plots make sensational, profitable videos

By Richard Zacks

Sex, murder, incest, babies trapped in wells, heroic hijacked stewardesses, blue-blood call girls, smiling serial killers. Yes, yesterday's sensational tabloid headlines provide today's movie plots. And the more sensational, the better the bottom line.

If Martians ever landed and found the Earth deserted and were forced to learn about human life from a pile of based-on-true-story movies, they would think we earnings were a really twisted, weird bunch.

Mayflower, Madam, Ted Bundy, Bernie Goetz and Baby Jessica are just a few of the characters that have crowded the screen in recent years. Will there ever come a time when there will be movies about wholesome family dinners followed by rousing games of Parchesi? Hopefully not.

Perhaps the strangest plot of all, though, involves an Australian mother who claimed her baby was dragged off from a campsite by a dingo, or wild dog. That concept would have trouble flying even as a B horror flick, but when it's gospel truth, you can get Meryl Streep to star and lots of critics to gush about it.

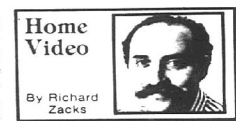

"Sensation attracts people," says Jerry Vermile, movie listings editor for TV Guide. "Mass audiences are interested in the lowest common denominator of human behavior — you don't make movies about Mother Teresa."

The dingo-got-my-baby tale, "A Cry in the Dark," (1988, Warner, $89.98), starring Streep, just hit home video. It tells how the Aussie media and the police joined forces to railroad a woman into a conviction for child murder.

"A Cry in the Dark" provides a rare exception to the rule that tabloid-based, true-life stories usually wind up as television movies. Only two sensational real-life tales wound up as theatrical films in 1988 (at least among the top 50 box-office grossers): "The Accused" (Paramount, $89.98) and "Gorillas in the Mist" (MCA, $89.98).

Why do almost all these stories wind up as the made-for-television movie of the week?

"Speed is a major factor," says Ruth Slawson, vice president of miniseries at NBC-TV.

By Richard Zacks

Productions. "We can get it on the air quicker, before people forget the headlines. We're a close-up medium, and many people can identify with stories about ordinary people caught up in unusual events."

For example, NBC's "I Know My First Name Is Steven," a two-part series about a kidnapped child, recently drew an astounding 42 percent audience share on its second telecast night.

The vast majority of these true-life thrillers wind up as television movies, but the best ones — the ones you should go rent on video — have come out of theatrical release.

The all-time best is "In Cold Blood" (1967, RCA/Columbia, $79.95), which not only tells the story of a gruesome murder of an innocent family in Kansas, but offers a chilling portrait of the murders. Richard Brooks wrote and directed this black-and-white film, adapted from the pioneering book by Truman Capote. It is so creepy and believable that you almost feel as though someone stumbled onto authentic home movies of the event. Robert Blake is scary beyond belief as a jumpy ex-con.

Another great and dark true-life movie is "Midnight Express" (1978, RCA/Columbia, $69.95), about an American backpacker nabbed for drug smuggling in Turkey. Oliver Stone wrote the script chronicling the relentless physical and mental torture inflicted by the captors.

Also excellent is "Dog Day Afternoon" (1975, Warner, $59.95), which takes an oh-so-sensational look at a guy (Al Pacino) who tries to rob a bank to pay for his lover's sex-change operation. It probably is Pacino's finest role.

"The Killing Fields" (1984, Warner, $19.98) tracks the bitter odyssey of Sidney Schanberg and his guide/assistant Dith Pran in Cambodia after the Khmer Rouge takeover. "Mask" (1985, MCA, $24.95), the story of Rocky Dennis, the kid with the grotesque face, deserves to be in this group. As does "Silkwood" (1983, Embassy), which stars Streep as Karen Silkwood, a nuclear-parts worker who discovered abuses in her Oklahoma factory.

Among television movies, a handful stand out. "The Executioner's Song" (1982, IVE, $59.95) is the tale of convicted killer Gary Gilmore starring Tommy Lee Jones and Rosanna Arquette. Try to find the unrated European version; it's better than the American one, and features bolder language and steamier scenes between Arquette and Jones. Farrah Fawcett stunned the critics in "The Burning Bed" (1983, CBS, $79.98) about wife abuse; and "Adam" (1983, IVE, $59.98) remains the original as far as child-kidnapping goes.

Best Bets:

"Outlaw of Gor" (1988, Warner, $79.95) A Cannon exploitation flick based on John Norman's cult fantasy-novel series. A college professor goes to Gor to thwart plots and mingle with a former playmate.

Magic act at library

The first part of the program will feature a magic performance with audience participation. During the second part of the program, Woodruff will show the audience some of the secrets of magic.

This 45-minute program is for persons of all ages. It is presented in cooperation with the Madison County Arts Council.

Shrine scene of musical

The National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows in Belleville will present the musical "Cotton Patch Gospel" by Harry Chapin.

The musical, appropriate for the family, will be performed at the Shrine's outdoor amphitheater at 7 p.m. June 24. In the event of rain, the performance will be held at Althoff Catholic High School, Belleville. Admission will be free.

"Cotton Patch Gospel" features a country western head-down style in which the Gospel is presented in the setting of the rural South. The musical is the final work of the late Harry Chapin before his 1981 death in an automobile accident.

The musical will be performed by Youth Sing Praise, a group of 60 high school youth from all over the country who will gather for a deepening of their spiritual lives and development of musical talents in one week of rehearsals.

Those who wish additional information concerning Youth Sing Praise should contact Paul Lindauer, director of Youth Ministry at the Shrine, 387-6700.

Toys, miniatures, bears to be sold at Belle-Clair

Old and new dolls, toys and teddy bears will be featured at the seventh annual Doll, Toy, Teddy Bear, Miniature Fair on July 8. Then on July 9, dollhouses and miniatures will be sold at the fifth annual Dollhouse and Miniature Show and Sale.

The two different shows will be held at the Belle-Clair Exposition Building, Illinois 13 and 159, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

On July 8, the room will be filled with antique and modern large and miniature dolls, toys and teddy bears. G.I. Joe, Barbie, Marilyn Monroe, Gary Cooper and John Wayne dolls will all be on display. Other items at the show will be doll furniture, battery-operated toys for the '80s, supplies for collectors, lace and ribbons. One hundred dealers from seven other states will be exhibiting.

The Cardinal Glennon Hospital Ladies Group will be on hand July 8 to repair stuffed animals of all kinds. Minor repairs will be done at the show and the animal will be returned with a clean bill of health and a bright red bow. This will be done at no cost and as a service to the public.

On July 9, the public will have the opportunity to view miniature room boxes. The sale part of the show will feature ready made dollhouses and dollhouse kits. Individual items of all kinds will be available to create miniature size homes — furniture, chandeliers, wallpaper, outdoor furniture, plants and flowers, pictures, food, china dishes, pottery and rugs.

Free parking will be available and a snack bar will be open all day.
